Everyone gets their 15 minutes

Artist Andy Warhol predicted in 1968 that 'in the future, everyone will be world famous for 15 minutes'
Now YouTube — with the motto 'broadcast yourself' — will allow video uploads of precisely that length

In case 10 minutes isn't enough to show off your guitar solo skills or Lady Gaga impersonation, YouTube has raised the limit it places on video uploads to 15 minutes.

The video website, owned by Google Inc., said in a blog post Thursday that the longer upload time was the single-most requested feature that its users have been asking for.

YouTube says it's raising the limit now because it believes its "Content ID" technology, which automatically removes copyright violations by digitally sifting through the site's archives, is working.

"Because of the success of these ongoing technological efforts, we are able to increase the upload limit today," Joshua Siegel, YouTube product manager for upload and video management, wrote in the post. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Health Minister Deb Matthews addresses hospital workers and press at St. Michael's Hospital Thursday. She announced the expansion of a $100-million program to reduce emergency room wait times.

ERs get cash transfusion

Last month, nine out of 10 Ontario patients waited 11 hours if they had complex medical conditions and 4.3 hours if they had minor conditions

Health Minister Deb Matthews is expanding a government program that gives Ontario emergency rooms extra cash to cut their wait times.

The province is spending $100 million this year to help 71 high-volume ERs reduce the amount of time patients wait to be treated and discharged, she said.

"I'm so encouraged by the results participating hospitals have achieved since we launched the Pay For Results program in 2008," Matthews said in a release.

"I'm excited to expand this program so we can keep building on this success."

About $60 million will be spent on projects aimed at decreasing wait times, such as adding and reorganizing staff and renovating ERs to improve patient flow. The remaining $40 million is an "incentive" fund to reward hospitals that improve their wait times.

Opposition critics said the money would be better spent creating more long-term care beds to free up space in clogged hospitals.

Emergency departments are busy because residents don't have access to family doctors and many elderly people aren't getting what they need from home care, NDP health critic France Gelinas said.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Priority funding

- Although 25 additional ERs will tap into the program this year, more than half of the province's 163 emergency departments are still left out.
- But the 71 ERs that will have access to the cash represent about 76 per cent of all ER visits in the province, said a spokesman for Health Minister Deb Matthews.

Pan Am track and field coming to Toronto

Organizers of the 2015 Pan Am Games are searching for a Toronto stadium to host the showcase track and field events after scrapping plans to hold them in Hamilton.

Tourism site's place in cyberspace fuels feud

Cyberspace might have no boundaries but a digital kerfuffle over just where a key Ontario tourism website resides had the government on the defensive Thursday and the opposition on the attack.

The province's Ministry of Tourism and the agency that handles its marketing says tourism websites are hosted in Canada, not in the United States as the New Democrats claim.

However, the NDP said they suspected the Liberal government was simply trying to stamp out an embarrassing story.

NDP researchers found the key website linked to Tourism Minister Michael Chan's home page, Ontario-travel.net, was one of nine tourism sites hosted by a company in Michigan. Other sites — including springinontario.ca and fallinontario.com — are also listed with Electronic Data Systems of Pontiac, Mich.

Opposition uproar

- Said NDP tourism critic Paul Miller: "This is appalling and an absolute embarrassment ... Who'd think you'd have to connect through Michigan to discover Ontario?"
- Given recent scandals at eHealth Ontario and OLG, and this month's fiasco over eco fees, people aren't buying the government's attempts to blame its agencies, said PC Opposition Leader Tim Hudak.

Judge who wanted sex from refugee claimant sentenced

◗ Was adjudicator at woman's hearing ◗ Meeting recorded in 2006

A former immigration judge who asked for sex to approve an application from a Korean refugee claimant was handed an 18-month sentence Thursday.

Steve Ellis, 50, was found guilty of breach of trust and bribery in April.

Outside court Thursday, the woman, Ji Hye Kim, expressed relief the case was finally over after a "long, long four years."

"It sends a message that this can happen anywhere but we won't tolerate it as Canadians," added her husband, Brad Tripp.

In a statement, Ellis apologized and said he's ashamed. His psychiatrist had told a sentencing hearing that Ellis suffered from bipolar disorder, which leads to errors in judgment.

But the judge said Ellis breached the trust placed in him and his actions undermine the public's confidence in the immigration system.

'On the side'

▶ After he twice visited her at a restaurant where she worked, Kim planned to secretly videotape her third meeting with Ellis (pictured). "I want to be good friends with you, and I know you've got a boyfriend," Ellis can be seen and heard saying on the video, which was played at his trial. "I've got a wife, so I mean, if we do things together on the side, that's OK."

Mosquitoes drawn to scent of carbon dioxide and lactic acid

STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Mosquitoes attacking? It might be your scent.

It's the height of summer mosquito season, and if you're thinking the blood-sucking creatures have left you more scabbed, blotched and itchy than your bite-free friends, it's not just in your head.

Some people are actually more prone to mosquito bites than the average person.

The reason? It's because of the way you smell. And if you're drinking alcohol or pregnant, you're a more likely target for the pesky blood suckers.

Scientists in Britain and the United States who have been studying mosquito-biting patterns say varying levels of chemical compounds found in perspiration are a key factor differentiating the blistered, bitten and itchy and those who seemingly float through every summer bite-free.

MEET THE NEW BOSS

"WE DO HAVE A COMMON VISION OF WHAT WE'RE MOVING TOWARDS."

Few people outside government circles knew Bruce McCuaig's name before the deputy transportation minister was named the new chief operating officer for Metrolinx on Wednesday.

But steering an unprecedented transit expansion means McCuaig will have an impact on every community in a region expected to grow by 2.6-million people by 2031.

With a 26-year resumé in transportation and land-use planning, and experience heading up Ontario's Provincial Highways Management Division, McCuaig's backers say he's the right man for the job.

But will he be able to calm the controversy that has already beset some key transit projects, including the Georgetown GO expansion and Toronto's Transit City light-rail projects?

The Toronto Star asked McCuaig about the challenges ahead for himself, for Metrolinx and for the region.

Why were you interested in heading up Metrolinx?
With my background in transportation and land-use planning, this seems to be a real opportunity to play a role in the life of the future of the city region.

In terms of some of the transportation challenges in the area, I really think about making sure we're going to deliver the Sheppard LRT on time, on budget, the works in Georgetown, Eglinton, Scarborough RT, Finch, York Viva, delivery on GO expansion and service improvement.

How do we set the stage on, not just how to deliver on those projects, but to have a sustainable expansion and delivery of the transportation over the long term?

You're not a politician. But you know this (transit expansion) is politically loaded. There have been disagreements between the TTC and Metrolinx; there's competition among the municipalities for scarce resources. How do you see your role playing into some of that tension, potential conflict and competition?

I've got 26 years of experience in building networks with municipalities, with the federal government, in the provincial government, with stakeholders.

If we're going to achieve our transportation objectives in the region we have to collaborate, we have to partner. The one thing that we have now that we've never had in the past in this region is a shared regional transportation plan ... so we do have a common vision of what we're moving towards.

Have you had much experience dealing directly with the public?
(I've been involved in) environmental assessments. When you're doing environmental assessments there are public meetings involved, and sometimes there are three members of the public there and sometimes there are hundreds.

I've had a range of different experiences in dealing with stakeholders, whether they're public-based stakeholders or more private interests.

Health panel urges cutting back on the salt

Says Canadians like things salty Recommends reducing intake to prevent heart and other ailments

The movers and shakers of the health and business communities want to pinch Canadians' penchant for salt. A panel of experts has offered six general and 27 specific recommendations on reducing people's salt intake.

The group, chaired by Health Canada, released its long-awaited report Thursday in Ottawa. Manufacturers are being encouraged to lower the sodium content of their products over time to meet voluntary salt targets.

The initial aim is to reduce people's average daily sodium intake by about a third, to 2,300 milligrams, by 2016. For adults, 1,500 milligrams of sodium per day is considered adequate. The group's goal of 2,300 milligrams is considered the most sodium people should consume each day.

The average Canadian consumes 3,400 milligrams of sodium daily.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Recommendations

1. Revamping Canada's food-labelling system to make sodium levels clearer to consumers.
2. Forcing restaurants to list the amount of sodium in each dish.
3. Making companies use the same serving sizes in the nutrition facts table on product labels.
4. Updating Canada's Food Guide with more information about sodium and calories.
5. Putting more government money into research.
6. Monitoring sodium intake and releasing a report each year looking at whether people are cutting salt out of their diets.

Man gets 20 more months in jail

A Toronto man found guilty of trying to send devices to Iran that could be used to build nuclear weapons has been sentenced to another 20 months behind bars.

On Thursday, Mahmoud Yadegari was handed a four-year, three-month sentence, but with double credit for time served it amounts to an additional 20 months in jail.

Yadegari, 36, was arrested in 2009 after a joint investigation by the RCMP and the U.S. Department of Homeland Security.

What a difference a year could make

Think-tank says deficit war could be won 12 months earlier than forecast ‘Good news’ for Tories: Group

Ottawa's battle to rein in record deficits could be won a full year ahead of schedule, says an Ottawa-based think-tank.

The Conference Board of Canada says Ottawa stands to eliminate the deficit — and actually post a $5-billion surplus — within five years.

That's at least a year ahead of ahead of the plan laid out by Finance Minister Jim Flaherty in the March budget.

That budget still saw a $1.8-billion deficit in the final year of the projection period, 2014-15.

Flaherty's projections received wide criticism as overly optimistic at the time.

Parliamentary budget officer Kevin Page doubted Ottawa would ever get back to balance without additional tax increases or spending cuts.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Critics said Jim Flaherty was overly optimistic.

But Conference Board economists Glen Hodgson and Matthew Stewart said much has changed since March.

The news is not so good for many provinces, which are being whacked by ballooning health costs.

Some "will have difficulty re-balancing their books in the foreseeable future," the think-tank says.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Balancing books

The think-tank says the key to the recovery is nominal growth — which measures the value of output rather than the amount.

- Economist Matthew Stewart said nominal GDP has exploded thanks to a quick rebound in global commodity prices that has brought additional wealth into the country.
- This year's deficit will likely come in at $44 billion rather than the $49.2 billion estimated in the budget.
- Stewart said Ottawa can achieve its goals by reducing the size of the public service by 11,000 over the next three years.

Windsor Ford plant to cut shift

Realignment comes a day after GM closed its last plant in Windsor
Union VP calls news 'devastating'

Nearly 400 employees of Ford Motor Co. of Canada will be laid off this fall when the company cuts one of the two shifts at its Windsor Engine Complex.

The Canadian Auto Workers union says 489 of its members will be laid off from the complex Nov. 1. About 135 if them will get jobs at the Essex plant, also in Windsor, which is adding a shift in September.

Workers were advised in January that one shift at the Ford engine plant would be eliminated and the union was told Wednesday how many people would be out of work.

Silver lining

Marc Renaud, vice-president of CAW Local 200 representing autoworkers in Windsor, says the Essex engine plant has been a "bright spot" for Ford.

- The plant was idled in 2007 but soon secured enough government financing to persuade parent company Ford Motor Co. to build fuel-efficient V8 engines for the 2011 Mustang sports car at Essex.
- The plant has recalled 360 of approximately 900 laid-off employees. In total, 500 workers will be recalled.

Judge finds racist element in assault

Three men who attacked a black man in a swarming that went viral on YouTube have been found guilty of assault in Courtenay, B.C.

Provincial Court Judge Peter Doherty said Thursday that one of the men who pummelled Jay Phillips yelled a racial slur when he was confronted in a parking lot near a fast-food restaurant last July.

"The three young white men, fuelled by alcohol and testosterone and their own immaturity, crossed paths with a black man and lives changed forever," Doherty said.

Kirsten Phillips said her son did not wish to be in court to hear the verdict.

▶ A worker monitors water in Talmadge Creek in Marshall Township, Mich., near the Kalamazoo River Thursday as oil from a ruptured pipeline, owned by Enbridge Inc, tries to be trapped.

Pipeline owners warned

State and company officials had said they didn't believe the oil would spread past a dam at the lake

A subsidiary of Canadian energy transport giant Enbridge whose pipeline leaked hundreds of thousands of gallons of oil into a major Michigan river was warned by government regulators in January that its monitoring of corrosion in the pipeline was insufficient.

The U.S. Department of Transportation's Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration told Enbridge Energy Partners chairman Terry McGill in a Jan. 21 letter that its corrosion monitoring in Line 6B did not comply with federal regulations.

The Environmental Protection Agency, which has taken control of efforts to contain and clean up the Kalamazoo River spill, said late Wednesday that it believes more than 3.8 million litres of oil leaked from a pipeline into Talmadge Creek, which feeds the river. Calgary-based Enbridge Inc., the parent company, had estimated three million litres spilled Monday before they could stop the leak.

Enbridge spokeswoman Lorraine Grymala said Thursday she has no comment about the Jan. 21 letter. By late Wednesday, the oil had travelled at least 55 kilometres downstream from where it leaked in Calhoun County's Marshall Township, killing fish, coating other wildlife and emitting a strong, unpleasant odour. It had passed through Battle Creek, a city of 52,000 residents about 175 kilometres west of Detroit, and was headed toward Morrow Lake, a key point near a Superfund site upstream of Kalamazoo.

▶ Patrick D. Daniel

Enbridge said Wednesday and Thursday that it was ramping up its efforts to contain and clean up the mess. Chief executive Patrick D. Daniel said the company had made "significant progress," though he had no update on a possible cause, cost or time frame for the cleanup.

- Containment Workers and contractors were using vacuum trucks and absorbent booms to contain and clean the spill, and the company was bringing in more help, Enbridge spokeswoman Lorraine Grymala said Thursday.
- Numbers The overall workforce on the spill Wednesday was likely more than 400 people.

ACTIVISTS CHARGED AFTER PROTEST

Four Greenpeace activists were charged after protesters occupied the downtown Vancouver office of Enbridge Inc. and demanded the company halt plans to build a pipeline to B.C. from Alberta.

Greenpeace spokeswoman Stephanie Goodwin said about 30 officers arrested the four people at approximately 1:30 a.m. Thursday.

Const. Jana McGuinness said the three women and one man were released within hours.

McGuinness said one of the women who complied with officers' requests to unchain herself from the Enbridge doors was charged with mischief.

One Canadian injured in U.S. bear rampage

Two campers hurt, another killed at Yellowstone National Park Officials are searching for grizzly

A Canadian woman who was attacked by a bear in the middle of the night at a busy U.S. campground says she instinctively played dead so the animal would leave her alone.

"I screamed, he bit harder, I screamed harder, he continued to bite," says Deb Freele of London, Ont.

At least one bear rampaged through the campground near Yellowstone National Park in the middle of the night Wednesday, killing one man and injuring Freele and another man.

Freele, who is recovering in a Wyoming hospital, said she woke up just before the bear bit her arm.

"I told myself, play dead. As soon as I went limp, I could feel his jaws get loose and then he let me go."
DEB FREELE

Her survival instinct kicked in, and she realized that the screaming wasn't working. "I told myself, play dead," she said. "I went totally limp. As soon as I went limp, I could feel his jaws get loose and then he let me go." She said the bear was silent.

Freele, who was bitten on her arm and leg in the attack, suffered severe lacerations and crushed bones from bites on her arms. The male survivor suffered puncture wounds on his calf. The nature of the dead victim's wounds were not revealed.

The bear attack was the most brazen in the Yellowstone area since the 1980s, wildlife officials said. About 600 grizzly bears and hundreds of less-aggressive black bears live in the Yellowstone area.

Wildlife officials were still trying to capture the bear late Wednesday. The campground was closed.

In 2008, at the same campground, a grizzly bear bit a man sleeping in a tent. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Pakistani villager, with his daughter, moves to a safe place from a flood-hit village near Nowshera, northwestern Pakistan Thursday, July 29, 2010. Rivers overflowed during monsoon rains, washing away streets and killing at least 60 people.

Majority of Pakistanis view U.S. negatively

Despite billions in U.S. aid and a shared threat from extremists, Pakistanis have an overwhelmingly negative view of the United States, according to results of a new poll.

Most Pakistanis want improved relations with the United States, according to the poll, but still view the U.S. with suspicion, while support for American involvement in the fight against extremists has declined.

Nearly six in 10 Pakistanis polled described the U.S. as an enemy, while only one in 10 called it a partner. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A glimpse into a Kandahar city prison

After two years of Canada's reconstruction efforts, it's the safest place in Kandahar city It's what's outside the prison that threatens those inside

BILL GRAVELAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Corrections Canada mentor Dan Jack instructs guards at Sarposa Prison on the proper use of a baton in Kandahar city. Canada is helping to fund and oversee renovations at the prison.

These days, the safest place in Kandahar city is also the home to its most dangerous denizens.

40-year-old Sarposa prison was already notorious when a stunning siege by the Taliban in June 2008 made it even more so, a victim of one of the insurgency's most brazen and successful attacks in recent memory.

More than 1,000 inmates were freed, including an estimated 400 Taliban, and at least a dozen guards were killed when the attackers blew up a pair of explosive-packed tanker trucks at the front gate.

Even today, Sarposa is a place that seems under almost constant attack, even as Canadian money and know-how steadily transform it into a modern-day prison.

It's a point of pride for new warden Gen. Dastgier Mayar. Sarposa's biggest challenge, Mayar said, comes not from within, but from outside.

Several times a week, the prison still receives threatening phone calls from people claiming to speak for the Taliban. Many staff members are afraid to make the daily trip to work from their homes in various parts of perilous Kandahar city, and feel safest behind Sarposa's towering walls.

Security inside the prison has been completely overhauled. Walls have been reinforced and there's extra protection at the front gates. A new remand unit is almost complete and there is also upgrade work underway on the area where prisoners are allowed to see visitors.

"Recently, one of my deputy administration was assassinated near the prison while he was coming here."
GEN. DASTGIER MAYAR, WARDEN AT SARPOSA PRISON

The irony of a prison being the safest place in town isn't lost on George Sproul, deputy director for the Correctional Service of Canada contingent that's part of Canada's Provincial Reconstruction Team, based in Kandahar city.

"It's just outside the facility, within the city itself, that's a problem — but it's improving," Sproul said. On the other hand, the prison's high-security ring, which is home to serious offenders and "political prisoners" like Taliban insurgents, is a world apart from the rest of the facility, a place from a different era.

The light is dim, the ceiling is low and the maximum-security inmates — they move around freely during the day in long, stone-lined corridors behind heavy steel doors — are surprisingly quiet, whispering to themselves and avoiding interaction with the guards.

Body of second U.S. sailor found

A second U.S. Navy sailor who went missing in a dangerous part of eastern Afghanistan was found dead and his body recovered, a senior U.S. military official and Afghan officials said yesterday.

The family of Petty Officer 3rd Class Jarod Newlove, a 25-year-old from the Seattle area, had been notified of his death, the U.S. military official said on condition of anonymity.

Newlove and Petty Officer 2nd Class Justin McNeley went missing last Friday in Logar province. NATO recovered the body of McNeley — a 30-year-old father of two from Wheatridge, Colo. — in the area Sunday.

Taliban spokesman Zabiullah Mujahid told The Associated Press in Kabul Thursday that two days ago the Taliban left the "body of a dead American soldier for the U.S. forces" to recover. The Taliban said McNeley was killed in a firefight and insurgents had captured Newlove. Mujahid offered no explanation for Newlove's death.

Lab review suggests key fixes

An external review of laboratory services for Newfoundland's largest health authority recommends several changes to avoid repeating past mistakes.

Eastern Health launched the review by the University Health Network's Laboratory Medicine Program in Toronto.

It was requested after errors were discovered earlier this year related to cyclosporine, a drug used on patients whose immune systems are threatened.

Key findings include dysfunctional relationships among various lab staff, lack of complex testing expertise, low morale and inappropriate relationships and responsibilities between management and staff.

South Africa removes kings

South Africa's president says six of the country's traditional monarchies are being abolished.

Some of the monarchs, who preside over hearings to resolve tribal disputes, were appointed by the apartheid government with few legitimate claims to their throne.

President Jacob Zuma told reporters Thursday the new move aimed to correct "the wrongs of the past."

13 South Africa's 13 black ethnic kingships were used to muster support for white-led rule in the apartheid era before democratic elections in 1994.

Leaders of the six kingships affected by the move have said they will challenge their demotion in court.

Woman admits to killing her babies

THIBAULT VANDERMERSCH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Prosecutor Eric Vaillant delivers a statement Thursday at Douai Court in France. Dominique Cottrez, a 46-year-old nurse's aide, who admitted suffocating eight of her newborns and concealing their corpses, has been charged with manslaughter, Vaillant said.

◗ Accused's husband freed ◗ Says he knew nothing about pregnancies

A French woman who admitted suffocating eight of her newborns and concealing their corpses in the garden and garage of her home has been charged with manslaughter, a prosecutor said Thursday.

Dominique Cottrez, a 46-year-old nurse's aide, said that after a bad experience with her first pregnancy she never again wanted to see a doctor. She admitted delivering the babies herself and placing the corpses in plastic bags. She buried two of the newborns in the garden and hid the other bodies in the garage, prosecutor Eric Vaillant said.

The drama recalled baby killings of the past but surpassed all other known cases in France in recent years in the number of infants killed by their mother.

"She explained that she didn't want any more children and that she didn't want to see a doctor to take contraceptives," Vaillant told a news conference.

"It's revolting. It is monstrous. For me ... they aren't human beings. It's monstrous to have killed eight viable babies."

JANIQUE KASZYNSKI, THE ACCUSED'S NEIGHBOUR

"She was perfectly conscious of the fact that she was pregnant each time."

Cottrez and her husband, Pierre-Marie Cottrez, were detained Wednesday after two corpses in plastic bags were discovered in a garden by the new owners of a house that had belonged to the woman's father in the town of Villers-au-Tertre in northern France. Under questioning, the woman admitted there were six other corpses and told investigators they were in plastic bags in the garage of her home, where they were found. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sherrod plans to sue blogger

A woman who was ousted from her job at the U.S. Agriculture Department said Thursday she will sue a conservative blogger who posted an edited video of her making racially tinged remarks last week.

The edited video posted by Andrew Breitbart led Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack to ask Shirley Sherrod to resign, a decision he reconsidered after seeing the entire video of her March speech to a local National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) civil rights group. In the full speech, Sherrod spoke of racial reconciliation and lessons she learned after initially hesitating to help a white farmer save his home.

She said she doesn't want an apology from Breitbart for posting the video that took her comments out of context, but told a crowd at the National Association of Black Journalists annual convention that she would "definitely sue."

Vilsack and U.S. President Barack Obama later called Sherrod to apologize for her hasty ouster.

Peace talk delayed

Despite pressure, Palestinian president refuses to immediately restart direct talks with Israel

Arab nations on Thursday backed the Palestinian president's refusal to immediately restart direct talks with Israel.

The Arab foreign ministers endorsed the idea of direct negotiations, said Qatari Prime Minister Sheik Hamad bin Jassem Al Thani, but left the timing up to Palestinian President Abbas, who has laid down several conditions.

The U.S. and Europeans have been pushing a reluctant Abbas to dive back into face-to-face negotiations with Israel, which broke off in 2008. "We haven't discussed when and how the direct negotiations will start. This is a matter for the Palestinian side to decide," Al Thani said.

The Arab foreign ministers sent a letter to President Obama explaining their position on direct negotiations and their requirements for talks.

According to Al Thani, the ministers had originally been against endorsing direct talks, but due to the serious situation in the region they were willing give it a try. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto man arrested in Halifax debit fraud scam

5 thousand dollars-plus is the amount that Torontonian Volodymur Zozulya has been charged with fraudulently obtaining.

Police say a Toronto man faces a number of charges in connection with a debit-card skimming operation in Halifax.

An investigation led police to the Via Rail station Thursday in Halifax, where they arrested 22-year-old Volodymur Zozulya.

A search of his bag yielded several technical devices and a "substantial" quantity of cash.

Financial crime investigators say there's a link to a skimming operation targeting CIBC automated banking machines in Halifax. Zozulya is charged with fraud over $5,000, possession and use of credit card data, and possessing a device intended to forge credit cards.

He's also accused of intercepting a function of a computer system and possessing a computer password that enables him to commit the offence of fraud.

Police also arrested a woman, but she was released without charges.

▶ Hiroshima after the atomic bomb was dropped.

The day Hiroshima died

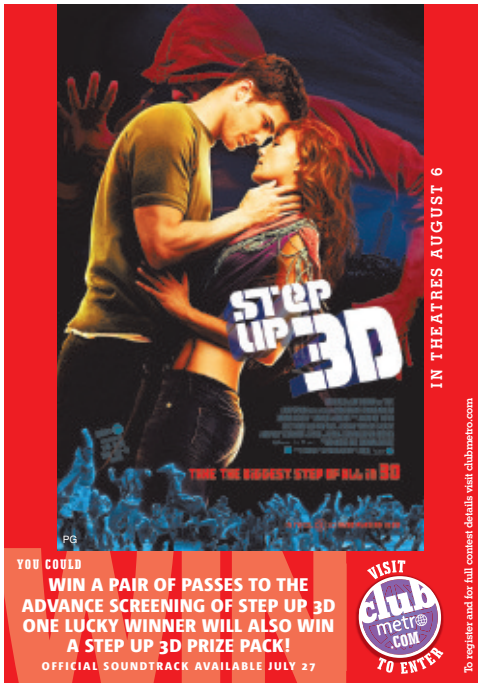
ELISABETH BRAW
METRO WORLD NEWS

On Aug. 6, 1945, Noriko Ueda was a 13-year-old girl going about her daily duties at a printing shop in Hiroshima.

Suddenly, the Earth shook. The United States had dropped an atomic bomb on the Japanese city.

Ueda received only slight injuries, but she soon found out her father, mother and sister had been buried under the family's house.

Before long, more than 90,000 people — estimates range to more than 160,000 — were dead, most of them from burns and radiation.



"Everybody who survived just lost their feelings."
NORIKO UEDA

Noriko Ueda's family was lucky: Her mother and father were able to walk.

That her mother's body was full of shards from shattered windows was a small concern as the family made its way past corpse after corpse, trying to reach safety in the nearby mountains.

"I saw a naked man who looked like a ghost running through the streets, but somehow the corpses didn't bother us that much," says Ueda.

The reality was that Hiroshima was destroyed.

The United States, in an effort to end the Second World War more quickly, had released the most lethal weapon known to man.

Three days later, the U.S. dropped an atomic bomb on Nagasaki, resulting in the deaths of some 60,000 to 90,000 people.

"The United States had tested bombs and knew what the physical impact would be," explains Princeton history Prof. Michael Gordin.

"But they didn't think of the injuries radiation would cause."

The U.S., however, did succeed in ending the war: On Aug. 14, Japan capitulated.

"Initially, there was almost no negative reaction against the bombs," says Gordin.

"The Catholic church was the first to criticize the attacks, pointing out that killing civilians is always wrong."

Today, Hiroshima and Nagasaki represent the unnecessary cruelty of war.

U.S. president Harry Truman "never said he regretted using atomic bombs, but during the Korean War several years later he chose not to use atomic bombs, apparently for moral reasons," says Gordin.

Noriko Ueda's family never found her other sister.

To this day, they don't know what happened to her.

Today, Ueda, a homemaker who still lives in Hiroshima, gives tours to school classes at Hiroshima's Peace Memorial Museum.

"I see myself as a witness of history because I have the good fortune to be alive," she explains.

"But I also try to explain the war to the children and why it began."

▶ Chad Diehl says Hiroshima is now a peace symbol.

CHAD DIEHL

90% OF THE BUILDINGS WERE DESTROYED

Chad Diehl is editor of And The River Flowed As A Raft Of Corpses: The Poetry Of Yamaguchi Tsutomu, survivor of both Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

What was Hiroshima like after the attack?
Over 90 per cent of the buildings were completely or mostly destroyed in the blast and subsequent fires. Doctors who managed to organize relief stations had never treated radiation poisoning and didn't understand what they were treating.

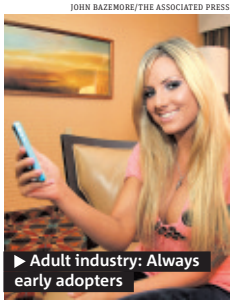
How did the city develop afterwards?
Hiroshima's 1949 reconstruction plan was called the Hiroshima Peace Commemoration City Construction Law, and since then the city has been known as Peace Commemoration City. The city quickly became the centre of Japan's peace movement.

How do Hiroshima residents feel about being seen as peace symbols?
The government has been instrumental in creating Hiroshima as a peace symbol, but the residents have done their part. For the survivors, this is a way to give meaning to their suffering.

Porn industry always a step ahead of game

Doesn't match Apple's squeaky-clean image Free iPhones for performers Concerns about child porn

JOHN BAZEMORE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



Adult industry: Always early adopters

It's a maxim of technology: Invent the newest gadget and the porn industry will find a way to cash in.

So when Apple Inc. launched the iPhone 4 and its FaceTime videoconference feature, it didn't take long for adult entertainment companies to develop video-sex chat services and start hiring workers through Craigslist.

With more than three million of the phones already sold, the adult industry stands to make big money on this new way to reach out and touch someone — even if it puts Apple, which has always taken pains to keep its iPhone apps squeaky clean, in an awkward spot.

For years, cameras mounted on computers have helped connect people for racy online video sessions. But the portability and privacy of a cellphone makes FaceTime a new frontier for the industry.

"A phone is such an intimate thing, you usually don't lend it out," said Quentin Boyer, a spokesman for Pink Visual, an adult production company.

He said his company will offer FaceTime sessions with some of the same women who appear in its videos.

HEALTH CARE: STOP FEARING PRIVATE SECTOR

I spent an entire month in the emergency room last night. I came in carrying my four-month-old son on my shoulders. He was crying and had trouble breathing. I whispered to him: "Keep it up, son. They'll take care of us in no time." Fifteen hours later, he was still coughing. The waiting room was filled. My shoulder was sore. I started thinking about my next column.

We rely on the private sector to feed us, to dress us, to provide us with a roof over our heads.

We let private companies repair our vision and pull our teeth. But allow the private sector into a hospital? Never! We prefer letting our fellow citizens die on a waiting list.

The healthcare system is cracking and throwing money at the problem won't fix it. Competition, even if not a miracle solution, could help.

We can harness the knowledge and talent of our entrepreneurs, doctors and nurses. I say let them compete against each other in an effort to attract us into their hospital.

To succeed, they'll have to offer a better service, and control costs. Would this leave us with an American-style healthcare system? No. Rather, with one similar to what Europe's social-democratic countries enjoy.

"The health care system is cracking."

In Denmark, if you wait more than one month for an operation, they send you to a private hospital.

In Sweden, the most efficient hospital, and the one most appreciated by Swedes, is listed (horror!) on the stock exchange. Swedes rich and poor get treated there, without paying a dime out-of-pocket.

In France, 40 per cent of hospitals are privately owned and for profit. Each citizen has access to these hospitals' doctors and first-class equipment — all paid for by the State.

In Belgium, the contribution of the private sector to healthcare eliminated waiting lists.

Imagine getting an appointment and seeing a doctor … the same day!

Most importantly, everyone is covered by some form of public insurance. Let me repeat: There is no two-tier healthcare.

European countries have understood that a well-regulated private sector can contribute to the provision of healthcare without sacrificing universality.

The State's role is to ensure universal coverage for its citizens, not to supply the service itself. Local entrepreneurs have talent and expertise enough to do that.

Retirement age of pilots will be reviewed

The Federal Court of Canada will conduct a judicial review of a Canadian Human Rights Tribunal decision that called into question the ability of unions and employers to negotiate mandatory retirement ages for Air Canada pilots.

The challenge to the tribunal decision was brought by the Air Canada Pilots Association, which wants to be able to negotiate a standard retirement age for pilots, which is currently age 60. Hearings will proceed on Nov. 22 in Ottawa. THE CANADIAN PRESS

5 MINUTES WITH: JULIA DIMON

Julia Dimon gets paid to travel the world and write about it, which can only lead to the conclusion that she was Mother Teresa in her past life.

OK, be honest. What does the rest of the world really think about us?
When I tell people I'm Canadian, they're thrilled. They'll say, "Oh, Canada! I hear that's such a beautiful country," and they'll almost unanimously make some kind of West Coast reference. And, inevitably, someone always has a cousin in Toronto.

Everyone has a story where they've completely embarrassed themselves while trying to look culturally sophisticated. Are you able to share yours without getting extradited?
I've had the occasional blunder when attempting to learn the local language. Once I walked into a restaurant in Japan and yelled out what I thought was a warm greeting, but, in fact, I ended up shouting, "You bastard!" I highly recommend reading up on cultural etiquette before you travel anywhere.

Pearson can be a bit of a nightmare these days. Any airport survival tips?
Give yourself enough time: A lot of stress comes from the rush. Pack lighter, which will save you money because many airlines charge now for baggage. Ask for a bulkhead seat or one by the emergency exit so you have more legroom.

Anthony Bourdain moment: What's the single-handed, most disgusting thing you've ever eaten?
I'd have to say the grossest of all was balut, which is 18-day-old fertilized duck egg. It's a very popular snack in the Philippines, but when you open it up you can see all the feathers and beaks forming — you can see the veins, and the hair and the fur and the formation of the eyes because it's an almost fully developed chick.

So, did it actually taste like, you know, chicken?
It kind of tasted like old turkey. It wasn't good. But at the same time, I like to encourage people to try new things. And remember, here foie gras is a delicacy, but the concept of it is disgusting. So I often eat strange foods that would be gross to our culture because I don't like to pass judgment. But I don't think I'll be making a balut omelette anytime soon.

EDMONTON. Among other things, war can be stupid.

You can kill a live enemy but not a barely alive enemy. You can kill an able-bodied person but not a disabled one. What is worse? In support of our troops, the Canadian soldier should not have been tried for murder. A soldier's aim is to kill. How foolish the ethics of war. Today's term for combat is a firefight. It's the heat that can change a soldier's perspective.

Metro Minute with Irie Music Festival

With so many options for Caribana weekend, choosing an event may start to leave you frazzled. Hey, man — Irie! No, literally: Irie. As in the Irie Music Festival, featuring a range of musical artists from the chilled-out vibes of Solitair to the cool crooning of local R&B institution Chris Rouse.

Organizers say their goal is to "promote a greater understanding between the diverse cultures and traditions of Toronto," which means there will be plenty of "one love" to go around. This year, the program runs at Queen's Park, Nathan Philips Square and Yonge-Dundas Square, so check local listings for artists and showtimes.

▶ Mark Wahlberg, right, Will Ferrell, left, and Steve Coogan ham it up in The Other Guys, in theatres next week.

Who said Wahlberg can't have some fun?

The Departed star pairs up with Will Ferrell in cop comedy The Other Guys ◐ Actor sheds brooding tough guy image to 'look ridiculous'

SASHA PERL-RAVER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

One of the biggest surprises in store for moviegoers this summer won't be found in the last few seconds of Inception.

The real revelation is that Mark Wahlberg is seriously funny, a fact audiences will come to realize when The Other Guys hits theatres.

"If you come from a different background — doing serious films — and you try to do a broad comedy and it's not funny, you're probably not going to get the chance to do it again," Wahlberg says of his decision to dive into the comedy fray.

Luckily he teamed up with some strong comedic talent. The movie co-stars Will Ferrell and was directed and written by Adam McKay, who helmed some of Ferrell's earlier hits, including Anchorman and Talladega Nights. Considering that Ferrell and McKay's relationship spans their days at Saturday Night Live starting in 1995, the co-founding of FunnyorDie.com and the birthing of some of Ferrell's most beloved roles, Wahlberg easily could have taken a back seat.

But rather than play the patsy and let them have all the fun, the actor exploits his brooding tough guy image, perfected in roles such as his Oscar-nominated turn in The Departed, and turns in a side-splittingly funny performance that's neck-and-neck with Farrell's.

"It was really just about letting go, being fearless, not being afraid to look ridiculous and have people laugh at you instead of with you," Wahlberg explains. "Coming from the background I come from, you can be a little self-conscious. It's OK to be cool but it's not OK to be corny. That's something I've dealt with over the years as an actor; not worrying what people think."

Making his Mark

Here are some funny films that Wahlberg's acted in:

- Date Night (2010) Plays a security pro who's always shirtless. Not a funny character per se but the bare-body shtick brings laughs.
- I Heart Huckabees (2004) Wahlberg's turn as a firefighter opposed to petroleum was worthy of some chuckles.

DROLL DUOS SHOW SOME CHEMISTRY

When people talk about chemistry in movies most often they refer to the sexual sparks that fly — or not — between the leading man and woman, but it's just as important between actors who aren't necessarily going to fall into bed clinched in a mad embrace.

That connection — as elusive and indefinable as it may be — is just as important to comic actors as jokes or pratfalls. Laurel and Hardy had it. So did Abbot and Costello. And so do Steve Carell and Paul Rudd, who team up for a third time in this weekend's Dinner for Schmucks. Here are some other droll duos:

Matthau and Lemmon

Jack Lemmon called Walter Matthau the "best actor I've ever worked with." Playing off the differences in their personalities and appearances they made nine films together, some classic — The Odd Couple — some not — Grumpier Old Men — but whatever the movie they had an ease about them that couldn't be faked.

Stiller and Wilson

In early aughts it seemed like you couldn't have one without the other. Described as "the yin and yang of Hollywood A-listers" Ben Stiller — dark and edgy — and Owen Wilson — laconic and expressive — made four films together in four years — Meet the Parents, Zoolander, Starsky & Hutch and the Royal Tenenbaums — and say that even if the film work dried up they would still find a way to work together.

Pryor and Wilder

Roger Ebert said Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder "make a good team, Wilder with what he calls his 'low-key high energy,' Pryor with his apparent ability to con anybody out of anything." The pair was magic on screen but apparently didn't always see eye to eye off screen.

▶ The documentary Hugh Hefner: Playboy, Activist and Rebel releases next week.

ALL PLAY, ALL

There's more to Playboy chief Hugh Hefner than nude women Doc shows that the pajama-wearing icon has been a fierce activist as well

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

There have been several movies involving Playboy magazine's iconic chief but what makes Hugh Hefner: Playboy, Activist and Rebel stand out is the willingness with which the octogenarian lets it all hang out.

"I have said on a number of occasions that my life is an open book with illustrations but there is this other half," said Hefner, subject of Brigitte Berman's latest documentary. "What makes this (film) unique is Brigitte's approach which is telling the other half."

To many, Hefner has been solely aligned with images of nude women wearing bunny ears thanks to his half-century old men's magazine. However, as Berman's documentary points out, the pajama-wearing icon has stood at the forefront of civil rights and free speech — distinctions that have mostly been displaced by a hedonistic caricature.

THE TIME

"My life is an inkblot test," admitted Hefner. "You ask six people what they think Hefner's all about or what Playboy's all about, you'll get six different answers."

One surprising characteristic about Playboy's founder is the sentiment he retains for his youth. Notorious for keeping scrapbooks and artifacts, Hefner allows a glance into years of archival footage and memories that remain as sharp as they were decades ago for the legend.

"Being raised in a very conservative home, the movies for me were a source of escape and inspiration."
HUGH HEFNER

"It was a childhood filled with games of imagination and my home was the home where the kids came to play and I invented the games — it's pretty much the same thing going on now," laughed Hefner. "I'm still in pajamas like I was back when I was a kid!"

Spacek hits new high in Get Low

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

▶ Sissy Spacek stars in Get Low.

As a frail wisp of a girl with a charming Southern twang and intimidating acting chops, Sissy Spacek found fame in the 1970s with starring roles in Terrence Malick's timeless Badlands and the horror classic Carrie.

The actress hasn't left the big screen since, picking up an Oscar and countless other accolades over 57 film and television appearances.

When asked what she looks for in roles these days Spacek told Metro, "I just look for something that I haven't done and an interesting character with something that I recognize in myself. It's a wonderful thing because as you get older roles change and you get to explore whole new universes."

Spacek's newest film, Get Low, is a poignant, funny, and tragic tale about an elderly hermit (Robert Duvall) who decides to have his funeral while still alive.

The actress claimed that she was attracted to the script because, "It's not a formula film, but a unique and beautiful story about redemption and forgiveness."

Get Low was the directorial debut of Aaron Schneider and while working with an inexperienced director might make other actors of her stature apprehensive, Spacek considered it an irresistible opportunity.

"I find it exciting and I've had a lot of good luck with first time directors like Terrence Malick and Aaron," Spacek says.

The director might not have been experienced, but Spacek was joined in the cast by two legendary talents: Robert Duvall and Bill Murray.

The actress was quick to acknowledge the joy of working with both. "Acting for Robert is like falling off a log. You don't see any process. It's seamless," gushed Spacek, who was equally enamoured by Bill Murray's improvisational performance.

The SNL ride

▶ Spacek Remembers Bill Murray And SNL
"I was on SNL in 1977 and I think it was Bill's first year on the show. That experience was like being on one of those carnival rides where you stand against the wall while it spins and the centrifugal force holds you against the wall."

Comedy for Schmucks

Dinner for Schmucks
Genre: Comedy
Director: Jay Roach
Stars: Paul Rudd, Steve Carell

One of the many, many problems with Dinner for Schmucks is that it takes its sweet time before mentioning the dinner of the title — and then is even more leisurely in getting its stars (Paul Rudd and Steve Carell) to the table — that the whole occasion begins to feel like an afterthought.

Rudd's Tim hopes to please his boss (Bruce Greenwood) by attending a monthly dinner where each guest has to bring the biggest idiot they can find so that everyone can laugh at their expense. Despite Tim's mutterings of moral objection, when he meets Barry (Carell), he thinks he might have a winning loser.

Jay Roach's comedy falls flat in part because the humour is so aggressive from the get-go, with a tinge of meanness bubbling beneath the surface that makes it seem as if we're supposed to laugh along with the dinner guests at Carell's socially inept IRS worker with a penchant for taxidermy.

The films spends so much time establishing that Barry means well, even if he's a moron, and Tim's really a nice guy, even if he is going along with the dinner, that the audience ends up resenting them both. Supporting actors, including Larry Wilmore of The Daily Show" and Ron Livingston, are given barely anything to do, and Zach Galifianakis, as Barry's rival, was apparently asked to just show up and be Zach Galifianakis, with the producers under the impression that would be enough to get the audience laughing. It's not.

The one saving grace of the film is Flight of the Conchords vet Jemaine Clement, succeeding where Galifianakis fails.

Kitty kitty bang bang

Cats and Dogs: The Revenge of Kitty Galore
Genre: Family
Director: Brad Peyton
Stars: James Marsden, Bette Midler
●●●

In the follow-up to the surprisingly charming 2001 Cats and Dogs, the canines and felines have to begrudgingly team up to take on the titular Kitty Galore (voiced by Bette Midler, digging into each and every syllable), a former feline agent who is hell-bent on taking over the world after being rejected by her human minders following a freak fur-removing accident.

That leaves a brash newbie (Marsden), his veteran partner (Nolte) and a wary feline counterpart (Christina Applegate) to stop her.

The title character and Roger Moore aside, there are plenty of James Bond references, including Galore's white mouse she perpetually pets. But then those are outweighed by the butt-sniffing gags. Still, kids could do a lot worse.

Countdown to Zero
Genre: Documentary
Director: Lucy Walker

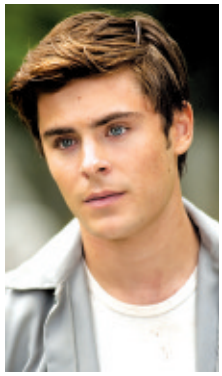
This slick documentary about the impending dangers of nuclear warfare offers sobering viewing for the politically conscious.

Though the film will inevitably play to a small crowd and preach to the choir, learning about the number nuclear weapons available and the ease with which nuclear material can and has been smuggled across borders is undeniably terrifying (e.g. potentially deadly uranium cannot be detected by current technology if it is concealed in kitty litter).

Lucy Walker's documentary is limited to talking heads revealing endless streams of information, which can get tiresome since so much of it has been said before.

But on the plus side, the film is guaranteed to rile up armchair activists looking for a reason to get angry.

PHIL BROWN



Charlie St. Cloud
Genre: Drama
Director: Burr Steers
Stars: Zac Efron, Amanda Crew

You ought to pity poor Charlie St. Cloud. Sure, he's a sailing sensation with cutie-pie looks but the kid just lost his younger brother in an accident.

In fact, Charlie (Zac Efron) is so haunted that he begins talking to tombstones and playing catch with his sibling's ghost. Crazy yes, but in this melodramatic hokum, the insanity is still no match against Efron's crystal blue eyes when it comes winning the beating hearts of young Tess (Amanda Crew).

Presumably, that goes for the movie's demographic as well since capturing Efron's dreamy looks in a magical light overcompensates for lack of compelling dialogue and plot. If that's enough for you, enjoy. For the rest, the only pity you'll be feeling will be for yourself.

CLASSIC ROCK REFLECTIONS

When I was invited to the High Voltage Festival in London last weekend, I made all kinds of cracks about the lineup being terminally geriatric. I had visions of signs above the backstage entrance that read "YOUR PROSTATE MUST BE THIS BIG FOR YOU TO PERFORM!"

I mean, Argent? They hadn't played together in 38 years. Uriah Heep was going to run through their entire 1972 album, Demons and Wizards. The combined age of ZZ Top is 182; for Emerson, Lake and Palmer (together for the first time since 1998), it's 187. Ian Hunter was going to sing All the Young Dudes again — even though he just turned 71.

I joked about the average age of the crowd, too, and the need for walkers and wheelchairs. But in the end, I was dead wrong.

Instead of a barrage of irrelevant, outdated songs by over-the-hill performers, I witnessed how enduring and ageless good rock 'n' roll really is. Bachman-Turner (Bachman-Turner Overdrive in all but name) cranked out their still-muscular hits. There were a couple of 20-somethings next to me who not only new all the words to even the deep album tracks but sang their parts in perfect harmony.

Over on the metal stage, the legendary Saxon bludgeoned an appreciative audience of young metalheads. On the prog stage, Dweezil Zappa's young band ripped through some Mothers of Invention material so effortlessly it would have brought a tear to dad's eye. And it was fascinating to watch all the rockers, punks and metal freaks pay their respects to the late Ronnie James Dio as Heaven and Hell — the collaboration between Dio and Tommy Iommi and Geezer Butler from Black Sabbath — played their last-ever set with Glenn Hughes (ex-Deep Purple and one-time Sabbath singer in the non-Ozzy years) on vocals.

And despite the wide availability of alcohol I did not see a single drunk person. Not one. And there were no police anywhere, either. There were security personnel to be sure, but no bobbies anywhere on the festival site.

At Heathrow, I found myself behind Randy Bachman in the security line. He was as giddy as a kid. "Wasn't it amazing?" he gushed. Yes. Yes, it was.

He joined Twitter on Wednesday, one day after going to the offices of Facebook, in Palo Alto, Calif., to preview some of his new material.

MTV tackles bullying

Jocks, nerds, burnouts, stoners: The names may vary, but almost all students know the labels

A new show on MTV attempts to help students look past stereotypes. The network hypes If You Really Knew Me as a real-life version of The Breakfast Club.

Each episode focuses on a different school, where students go through a program called Challenge Day. They share experiences with each other in exercises designed to cut down on bullying and gossiping.

The cameras follow five students before, during and after the program. One self-professed jokester realizes how much his words hurt when he picks on an overweight student. Classmates are surprised when they hear a popular cheerleader talk about how she doesn't feel pretty or cool enough.

Another student, 18-year-old Leikin Poppino, attended Challenge Day last year at Freedom High School in Oakley, Calif., and said it works.

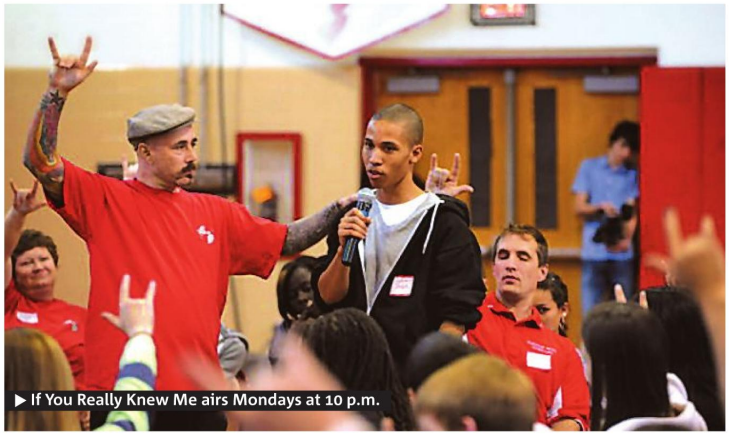
"It was such a positive experience," said Poppino. "It changed people for the better."

But a big question is whether the change lasts.

Freedom High had a "miraculous change" for about a week after the program, Poppino said. After that, the responsibility fell on those kids who took part to keep the momentum going.

"There would be moments when somebody would say something in class and it would be the kid who went through Challenge Day to say, 'Hey, you shouldn't say that or do that.'"

Students are surprisingly in touch with their emotions, said Sela Gaglia, who has worked for Challenge Day for 11 years.



▶ If You Really Knew Me airs Mondays at 10 p.m.

Even when students are resistant, once they understand that the Challenge Day leaders are genuinely concerned, "the walls come down," Gaglia said.

Gaglia is optimistic about the impact the show could have on viewers and believes it will give hope to students who "really do believe that they're alone."

If You Really Knew Me airs in Canada on Mondays at 10 p.m. ET.

The Talk will give hosts a chance to speak their minds

Former Roseanne star Sara Gilbert gathers some top TV talent for new day time talk show

Sara Gilbert, producer and co-host of the new CBS daytime show "The Talk," said she will share her life as a lesbian partner and mom on the air when it seems right.

But Leah Remini, among the six co-hosts, said she has no plans to make her religion, Scientology, part of the show.

"Not at all," Remini told a session of the Television Critics Association, adding, "I love to make people laugh, entertain them. That other thing is something that is not even part of my discussion."

Gilbert spoke up for Remini.

"It's also really dangerous to look at people through one lens ... Leah is a brilliantly funny, real, dynamic person with a lot of parts to her," said Gilbert, the former Roseanne co-star.

Asked about whether The Talk would echo ABC's The View, another daytime talk show with female hosts, Gilbert said that shows can have the same format but differ in nature, citing the David Letterman-Jay Leno late-night programs.

Gilbert, who said she developed the idea to create a meeting ground for women and mothers, has two children with her partner, Allison Adler. The actress was asked why a news release announcing the CBS show listed the partners of the other co-hosts, all straight, but not hers.

Gilbert replied that the decision was hers and that a network press release wasn't the first place she wanted to launch a discussion of her personal life. As an actress, it hasn't been necessary to discuss her sexuality and it doesn't dominate her perspective, she said.

"I don't think of things as 'out' or 'in,'" she said. "I just think I am who I am. I'll share it when it seems right."

New label for Rascal Flatts

Rascal Flatts has a new home. The country music titans will release their new album, Nothing Like This, on Big Machine Records on Nov. 16.

Big Machine also is the home of Taylor Swift, giving the independent label two of country music's most bankable acts.

The Disney Music Group shuttered the band's only previous label, Lyric Street, in April.

Bassist Jay DeMarcus called the new partnership with Big Machine "a perfect fit" and says label president and CEO Scott Borchetta understands what the band is trying to accomplish.

Kudrow prescribes laughter in web series

Actress plays self-absorbed therapist in popular online show

Former Friends star Lisa Kudrow is making herself laugh.

She's reading tweets written by her character, Fiona Wallice, on the online show Web Therapy, which recently completed its third season. Each segment runs about 3 minutes to 16 minutes.

Kudrow's character is a self-absorbed therapist who isn't interested in listening to people's issues. She's decided that 3-minute sessions by webcam are sufficient to diagnose a patient and dole out advice. The conversation often veers off-topic and onto Wallice.

Web Therapy is available on Hulu, lstudio.com and for purchase on iTunes. Each webisode plays out like viewers are looking at an actual computer screen with Kudrow and a co-star interacting in double boxes over web chat.

Unlike Fiona, who likes to keep her sessions brief, Therapy is expanding to other mediums. Showtime has picked up the series to combine and air as half-hour episodes. Additional material will be added to fill out the stories.

"Fiona is unabashedly self-serving," Kudrow explained in a recent phone interview from Los Angeles. "She doesn't even do a good job in covering it up. She just thinks everyone else is really stupid (and) she's the smartest person. Ever."

the app advice

There's an i Phone app that Kudrow likens to a therapy version of the Magic 8-Ball. Users type in a problem and get a response from Kudrow's character, such as: "Well, that's a ridiculous idea."

In one episode, a patient says to Fiona, "I was getting the impression the last couple of sessions that I was boring you," to which she responds, "I'm not bored. I mean I have enough of an intellectual life to keep interested in anything even you can say."

Victor Garber plays Fiona's husband, Kip, who may or may not be gay. Julia Louis-Dreyfus played Fiona's sister in the show's most recent season. Guest stars have included Jane Lynch, Selma Blair and Steven Weber.

The dialogue is mostly improvised, and actors wear an earpiece for director Don Roos to keep them on track.

"It's really fun," said Kudrow, who describes the process as "just listening and responding and then knowing that somewhere off in the distance we need to find our way over to a point."

One of the most noteworthy aspects of Wallice is her voice, which Kudrow slips in and out of when talking about the character.

STEPHEN LOVEKIN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Lisa Kudrow plays therapist Fiona Wallice in Web Therapy.

"I started with a friend who is really sexy, brilliant, articulate. ... This woman is like a hero to me," she said. "I thought that's who Fiona thinks she is, so I started with her. That voice. And then it filtered through my comedy factory which turns everyone into an idiot."

Kudrow recently took up tweeting. She doesn't feel comfortable doing it herself, so she tweets as Fiona.

"Her first tweets we have her not understanding what it is at all. She goes on and on and so it gets cut off so you'll see in the middle of a word it stops,"she laughed.

‘I made the right decision’

Black Eyed Peas’ frontman tells how he almost didn’t make music

Before embarking on his successful music career, Black Eyed Peas’ frontman will.i.am had designs on a far different line of work.

“Right after high school, I went to fashion school and the music just was a stronger calling at the time,” recalled the Grammy-winning artist, who attended the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising in Los Angeles.

“I think I made the right decision.”

While continuing to pump out hits with his multi-platinum-selling group, the rapper, singer-songwriter and producer is returning to his fashion roots with his menswear line, i.am.

While in Toronto for two concerts this week, the 35-year-old took time out for an in-store appearance at Harry Rosen in the upscale Yorkville area to launch his line in the city.

The offerings on display included a mix of basics like graphic T-shirts, alongside refined knits, some of which feature leather accents and detailing.

Outerwear pieces run the gamut from traditional pea coats to edgier hooded jackets with a graphic printed lining and coats with mesh-style pinhole cutouts.

“The thing that inspires my line, it’s not a person, it’s youth,” said the fashion-forward hip-hop star, decked out in large blue-framed sunglasses, a white Henley-style T-shirt, black vest and scarf, knee-length cargos and high tops.

“Youth culture, youth hip-hop, dance culture, the world of the arts, and just expression.”

The collection also has a strong Canadian connection, designed and produced by the i.am je suis division of Manhattan International based in Montreal.

“(Owner)Ted (Rozenwald) is a great dude and we have a lot in common as far as the desire to succeed, and how dedicated he is to making sure it’s right and perfect, and I’m the same way in the world of music,” said will.i.am, whose real name is William James Adams, Jr.

“Rig-ht now, we are making this thing grow” he ad-ded. “Like I told him, I’m dedicated to this venture for 10 years. I want to see it really really do well.”

But when it comes to creating clothes for the Black Eyed Peas’ lone lady member, Fergie, or any other women seeking feminine pieces from the i.am label, they’re out of luck — at least for the time being.

“I’d like to do stuff for girls, but right now, I just want to get the dudes right,” said will.i.am.

In the meantime, he simply wants to make pieces that inspire people to wear them and he doesn’t seem interested in crafting tailored looks or styling one particular individual.

No charges filed against other Jackson doctors

State investigation of seven other medical professionals who treated deceased pop star dropped. Meanwhile, personal doctor Murray has pleaded not guilty.

State investigators probing the death of Michael Jackson have decided not to file charges against seven doctors who treated him, authorities said Wednesday.

The doctors were part of an investigation by state Attorney General Jerry Brown's Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement, spokeswoman Christine Gasparac said.

One doctor whose name was not released has been referred to the California Medical Board for prescribing drugs to a Jackson alias, she said.

Candis Cohen, a board spokeswoman, declined to confirm the action, saying complaints and investigations were not public record.

Jackson's personal doctor, Conrad Murray, has pleaded not guilty to felony involuntary manslaughter in the singer's death. Authorities say Murray provided Jackson with a mix of sedatives, including a powerful anesthetic that killed him.

Los Angeles police who investigated the death had asked state and federal investigators to look into the prescribing practices of doctors who previously treated the 50-year-old pop star.

The federal Drug Enforcement Agency has also stopped investigating the actions of any other Jackson doctors, agency spokeswoman Sarah Pullen said.

The state investigation included the search of a prescription drug database that tracks doctors who prescribe controlled substances.

The database also monitors the quantity and recipients of those drugs.

ARTHRITIS
Pain free in 2 weeks!

This is what happened to me personally. After suffering for years I desperately tried everything, drugs, natural products,physiotherapy, acupuncture, magnets and nothing was of any real help. Finally I had relief in 2 weeks by taking shark cartilage that was specially processed to preserve the natural active ingredients. This is the kind we are now promoting. I realized then that there are over 50 million men and women that are battling the same illness and getting treatments that are not working well, otherwise we would not have this ongoing huge health problem. In the last 10 years we have helped tens of thousands of men and women to have less pain or no pain at all. This is a by-product of the food industry. No sharks are caught because of their bones/cartilage. Nick A. Jerch, President

We have real EVIDENCE that it works. On our web site you find over 100 testimonials with full names and towns. All 100% true. Skeptics may call them. Here are some examples: ■ Doctor suggested knee replacement after all his options failed with drugs and cortisone shots in knee and lower back. I recommend Bell Shark Cartilage to those millions suffering needlessly like I did for 40 years with arthritis in my knees. It's a shame that I was given drugs and injections all these years when a natural medicine could have spared me the endless torture day and night. Pat Laughlin, Coldwater, ON ■ My hip is 95% pain free. Pain killing drugs mask and Bell Shark Cartilage heals. Rebecca Hite, Oroville, CA ■ I tried another brand and pain came back. 2 weeks on Bell and pain is gone again. Gert Dupuis, Hanmer, ON ■ Cancelled knee replacement. I was in pain and limping. Have no more pain now. Can square dance for hours. Anton Melnychuk, Porcupine Plain, SK.

A SPECIAL REPORT BROUGHT TO YOU BY Nintendo

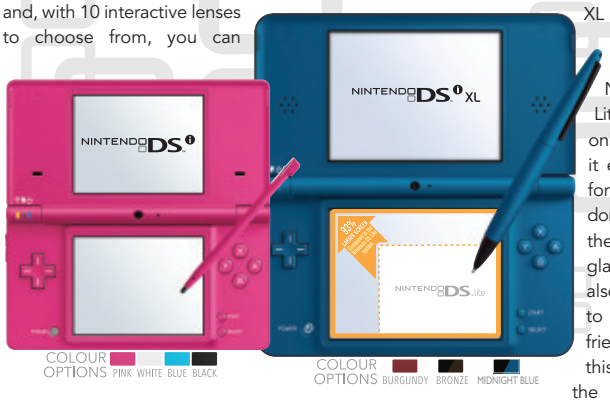
GETTING TO KNOW YOU

Running the gamut of Nintendo's portable lineup

For anyone who hasn't purchased a hand-held system from Nintendo since the Nintendo DS™ Lite came out, you have two options: The Nintendo DSi™ and the Nintendo DSi XL™.

Both have easy-to-use parental controls, dual cameras (outward and inward-facing), SD card support, wireless connections (both local and online), the ability to listen to AAC music files and download games, and more. Let's take a closer look at what the current portable lineup has to offer…

The main difference between the new systems and their predecessors is the addition of cameras. As in two cameras. This feature allows you to take pictures of yourself and those around you with ease and, with 10 interactive lenses to choose from, you can create all kinds of zany effects… and upload them straight to Facebook! As well, the Nintendo DSi XL comes pre-loaded with Photo Clock, which lets you customize the way you tell time on your system with your works of photographic genius.



And speaking of software, the Nintendo DS family has many options. Not only can it play almost every game made available for the Nintendo DS™ and Nintendo DS Lite, but you can use the Nintendo® Wi-Fi Connection to download games and programs (called DSiWare™) from the Nintendo DSi Shop*.

Some software is free (like Nintendo DSi Browser), while others can be downloaded using Nintendo DSi Points™, which can be purchased in card form at most electronics and video stores.

There are some differences between Nintendo DSi and Nintendo DSi XL (besides the name). For one thing, the Nintendo DSi XL screens are 93% bigger than the Nintendo DS Lite screens. Not only does it make it easier to read for those who don't always wear their reading glasses, but it's also big enough to share with a friend (of course, this also affects the physical size and heft of the unit—so if it's a more compact, solitary gaming experience you're after, the smaller system might be the way to go). The Nintendo DSi XL also comes with pre-loaded software: Brain Age™ Express: Math and Brain Age™ Express: Arts & Letters are two games that you can start playing as soon as you turn on your system for the first time. Oh, and the Nintendo DSi XL comes with an extra stylus—a nice, big one shaped like a real pen!

Now, these are just a few of the many features of Nintendo's current portable lineup. Ultimately, there are a lot of people who may or may not be huge gamers but are looking to test the waters with a hand-held unit—and whatever your needs, it looks as though Nintendo has something for everyone. For more information on the Nintendo DSi, visit www.pickupandplay.ca or, to check out the hottest downloadable titles, check out www.DSiWare.com.

Selleck on prime time

Tom Selleck is happy to be on a prime-time TV show — and even happier his new series isn't shot in Toronto.

There was some talk that Blue Bloods, which premieres this fall on CBS and CTV, would be produced in there.

"No offence, Toronto," Selleck told reporters Wednesday at the semi-annual network press tour in Beverly Hills, "but I've shot there, and it's a lovely place to shoot, but it's different."

Selleck plays veteran New York police commissioner Frank Reagan on the drama along with Len Cariou, Donnie Wahlberg, Bridget Moynahan and Will Estes. Executive producers Mitchell Burgess and Robin Green, the husband and wife writers who helped craft The Sopranos, saw Selleck as the perfect fit to play the heroic figure.

On Toronto Selleck says "it's difficult for me to argue that shooting a show about New York won't be better shot in New York."

Former Idol finalist goes country

The idea is simple but ingenious, really: Take a winsome country singer, give her a hunting show that features exotic locales and throw in a couple of celebrities.

That's the premise behind Versus' Goin' Country, which features former American Idol contestant Kristy Lee Cook in a reality show based on her life and her love of hunting.

"I know a lot of people who watch hunting shows and they get kind of bored with them, you know, with the same old thing, in the stand doing this and that," Cook said.

"So we tried to make it a little more real life with my music life in Nashville, trying to make it as a singer, and my life at home with the horses and barrel racing and my foundation for rescuing horses, and then hunting as well."

This will be the third outdoor-themed show Cook has hosted since her Idol stint in 2008.

The folks at Browning took notice of the singer when she wore a hat with the hunting company's distinctive deer silhouette logo during one performance.

"I know a lot of people who watch hunting shows and they get kind of bored ... so we tried to make it a little more real life." KRISTY LEE COOK

American Idol contestants aren't supposed to wear company logos, but Cook was able to sneak the Browning hat past those city slickers in Los Angeles.

"They were like, 'Is that a deer head?' 'Sure!'" Cook said.

The show, which begins Friday, highlights hunts from Texas to Wisconsin to Nashville. Country singer Aaron Tippin takes her turkey hunting on his land near Music City, fellow Idol finalist Blake Lewis joins her on a deer hunt in Texas and singer Jake Owen and his twin brother, Jarrod, go after exotic deer in Missouri.

"It's pretty wild," Jake Owen said. "She's just like one of the guys, really. She gets out there, whether she's killing deer, riding a four-wheeler or cleaning a deer."

▶ Rachelle Spector claims her imprisoned hubby Phil produced her new album

Spector gets credit on wife's new album

Imprisoned producer listed in liner notes on Out My Chelle Compares her to Elvis and Rolling Stones

In the often weird world of show business marriages, the love story of Phil and Rachelle Spector is among the strangest.

The 70-year-old Spector is a rock music legend imprisoned for the murder of an actress.

His wife, an aspiring singer who just turned 30, is dividing her time between prison visits and promoting her new album, for which he is listed as the producer.

For Rachelle, there has been a whirl of clubs, red carpet openings, travel, interviews and recording sessions, all happily reported on her Facebook page. For Phil, there is life in a tiny cell at a prison in Corcoran, Calif., where he lives on hope that his appeal will be granted and he will get a new trial. He was sentenced to 19 years to life behind bars.

"I was as excited about this album as when I met Elvis or the Stones. It's a gift from me to her."
PHIL SPECTOR

But with Rachelle's album, Out of My Chelle, Spector has a chance to jump back into the music world, where he built his Rock and Roll Hall of Fame credentials by producing such acts as the Beatles, Ike and Tina Turner, Cher, and many others. "I was as excited about this album as when I met Elvis or the Stones. It's a gift from me to her," he said recently from jail. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New unauthorized bio 'tells all' about Angie

Put Angelina Jolie's face on a magazine cover and sales will surely rise. Get her to write a memoir and it would be worth millions. But write a book about her, without her co-operation, and you're taking a chance.

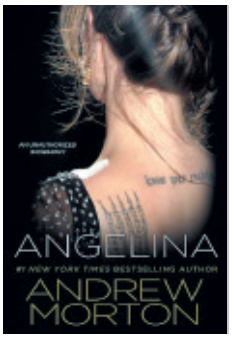
Coming a week after the release of her latest film, Salt, a biography has been published. Angelina, by Andrew Morton, is out with an announced first printing of 150,000 copies and the promise of a "spellbinding" adventure. Openly billed as "Unauthorized," the book includes intimate details on her troubled childhood, on such past lovers as Billy Bob Thornton and Timothy Hutton and, of course, her years with Brad Pitt.

Morton has a strong commercial history, but better when he works with a subject's involvement (Princess Diana, Monica Lewinsky) than without (Tom Cruise, Madonna).

In the age of the Internet, the unauthorized biography has been increasingly scooped by instant, endless online gossip.

"Sales of tell-all celebrity biographies have been negatively impacted by the information that is available on the Internet or in print," says Patricia Bostelman, vice-president of marketing for Barnes & Noble Inc.

"The Morton book is also competing with all the press Jolie has been getting around the launch of Salt, in which she is deliberately staying on message about her life with Brad and the kids. The audience for the book has often read all the key revelations prior to publication."



"There is much more competition from the tabloids and the Internet, so you have to go beyond the day-to-day gossip."
HOPE DELLON, BOOK PUBLISHER

"There is much more competition from the tabloids and the Internet, so you have to go beyond the day-to-day gossip," says Morton's editor, Hope Dellon of St. Martin's Press.

"It's got to go deeper than that. It's got to have some fresh insight and revelations, and we think Andrew's book does."

The Jolie book tells of her strained relationship with her father, actor Jon Voight; her cultish bond with Thornton and her ever-growing family with Pitt.

Identified sources include a childhood caretaker, an alleged former drug dealer and a close friend of Jolie's mother, the late Marcheline Bertrand, whom Dellon believes is given a fresh and thorough take in Morton's book.

Unnamed friends and associates are cited for allegations that Jolie fought with co-star Winona Ryder on the set of Girl, Interrupted, or had been intrigued by Pitt long before they became involved. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Celeb tell-all

The unauthorized celebrity biography has exploded in recent years, thanks to authors like Morton, and Kitty Kelley, whose most recent book on Oprah Winfrey caused a minor sensation. Here are more facts about the genre.

1. Beyond Kelley, there is a core of writers taking on familiar celebrities, including C. David Heymann (the Kennedys) and Edward Klein (Katie Couric, Hillary Clinton). But the market is so tough now that not even the death of Michael Jackson could expand it.

2. The celebrity books most likely to sell are those written by (or at least involving) the celebrities themselves. Chelsea Handler, Tori Spelling and Mackenzie Phillips are among those with recent hits. While some memoirs flop, such as Sarah Silverman's, more celebrities keep getting signed up. Demi Moore recently reached a seven-figure deal with publisher HarperCollins.

Mamma mia! Clooney GF in drug scandal

Elisabetta Canalis accused of snorting coke in a Milan nightclub famous for prostitution

George Clooney's Italian girlfriend is finding herself wrapped up in a cocaine scandal uncovered by an investigation into the Club, a Milan nightclub, according to Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera. "I remember taking cocaine with Elisabetta Canalis and two others," model-turned-prostitute Karima Menad says in court documents obtained by the paper. "We were in the Club and it was December 2007. We had been at a party of some famous, rich celebrity whose name I cannot remember. I don't remember who brought the drugs but we all took it." The alleged party took place before Canalis met Clooney.

Simpson up for American Idol?

Trouble songstress Jessica Simpson may be headed to American Idol, but she won't be taking over for Simon Cowell.

"She's not his replacement — they're two entirely different personalities," a source tells Life & Style magazine.

"This is part of a massive overhaul of the show. There may be more judges, more opinions." Simpson's rep would neither confirm nor deny the reports, saying, "There is nothing confirmed at this time."

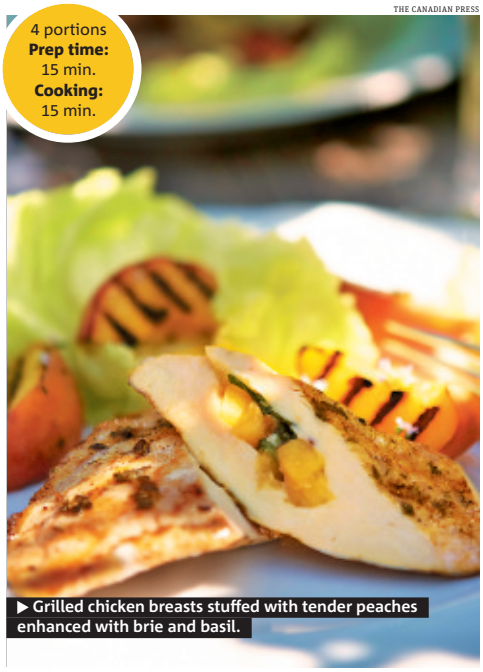
Sweeten things up with peaches

THE CANADIAN PRESS



4 portions
Prep time: 15 min.
Cooking: 15 min.

▶ Grilled chicken breasts stuffed with tender peaches enhanced with brie and basil.

▶ Tasty fruit can add some summer flavour ▶ Grilled chicken breasts will never be quite the same

Ingredients :

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) water
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) sugar
- 10 ml (2 tsp) each cassia, cardamom and star anise
- 5 peaches, washed and peeled (slice 4 and dice 1)
- 4 skinless, boneless chicken breasts
- 8 basil leaves, washed
- 125 g (4 oz) brie, cut into 4 slices
- 4 bamboo skewers, soaked in water
- Salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste
- You can substitute cinnamon or nutmeg for the cassia and ground ginger can replace the cardamom.

Now that peach season is in full swing, try pairing a few of the luscious orbs with grilled chicken enhanced with slices of soft brie.

Preparation:

1 In a small saucepan over high heat, combine water and sugar. Bring to a boil and then simmer for 1 minute. Add cassia, cardamom, star anise and sliced peaches; bring to a boil and then reduce to a simmer and cook for another 10 minutes. Let cool to room temperature, remove spices and then puree mixture in blender until smooth. Stir in diced peach and set aside.

2 Place chicken breasts on a clean work surface. Using a sharp knife and focusing on one breast at a time, cut a 7.5-cm (3-inch) slit horizontally into one side of the chicken breast to form a pocket. Spread about 30 ml (2 tbsp) of the puree mixture in the pocket of each breast. Then stuff each breast with 2 basil leaves and a piece of brie. In horizontal and weaving fashion, secure each breast with one skewer, then season with salt and pepper.

3 Place chicken on preheated grill and cook for 6 minutes on each side or until internal temperature registers 74 C (165 F). Remove from grill and let rest for 2 minutes before serving with the rest of the peach puree and your favourite summer-inspired garden salad.

Celebrate Canada on Food Day

In 2003, amidst the sanction by the U.S. of Canada's beef exports and the dramatic hardship it imposed on this country's agricultural community, it became obvious to at least one committed individual that action was needed.

That summer, renowned culinary activist Anita Stewart of Elora, Ont., founded The World's Longest Barbecue. Thousands of Canadians were encouraged to fire up their grills on the August long weekend and support locally produced foods. The event has continued.

"The huge success of that venture has now evolved into Food Day, an annual midsummer celebration when we share Canada's rich culinary heritage," says Stewart.

She still encourages Canadians to celebrate with friends and family around the barbecue on the Saturday of the long weekend, which this year is July 31.

But beginning this year, she is also recognizing restaurateurs, suppliers, growers and farmers who will join citizens to showcase the depth and breadth of Canada as a culinary nation. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Food Facts

Here are some fascinating Canadian food facts:

- It may be romantic to think that the earliest Europeans came to Canada for furs to clothe the fashionistas of the day. They didn't. They came for fish. Although Basque galleons hunted whales, it was cod that began the story of this country.
- Canada manufactures 84 per cent of the world's maple syrup. There are more than 30 million taps with roughly 15 million trees tapped in Canada. That's about one tap/spile/spout for each Canadian.

▶ Dolly mixture: The Latvian capital always throws up colour where you least expect it

Eager for Riga

- Riga is this summer's hot destination for sophisticated young travellers
- The Latvian capital has great food, great beer and great prices

ELIZABETH BRAW
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

At Riga's opera house, a young conductor energetically conducts Latvia's National Symphony Orchestra, an ensemble of remarkably fresh-faced players. The soloists — young Latvian opera singers — look like movie stars.

Welcome to Riga, an emerging destination for young travelers on a budget.

Until recently the Latvian capital was a destination mostly for touristy stag parties — no city's favorite. But Riga is trying hard to transform itself. "Stag parties are like a childhood disease for emerging economies," notes Janis Valags, Vice President for Corporate Communications at airBaltic, Latvia's national airline. "We're benefitting enormously from these vagabonds because they came and realized that in Riga you get a good value for money."

Today Riga has passed the vagabond stage. The Latvian capital features an impressive selection of shops, bars, restaurants and entertainment. But the good value for money remains — a result of Latvia's recent economic collapse. Another advantage for visitors is that the city is so compact that everything is walkable. And Riga's mayor wants people to visit his city for medical reasons, too. "We've got a large supply of doctors," explains Mayor Nils Usakovs, who's trying to get rid of Riga's stag party reputation. "People can come here for medical procedures like cosmetic surgery and get a good combination of quality and service."

Though Latvia's economy has resulted in a 17 per cent unemployment rate, its capital — a former Hanseatic city and the largest city in the Baltic states — features a bustling downtown with small squares dotted with outside cafés. Riga's remarkable collection of art nouveau buildings, Europe's largest, adds to its charm.

In one of these buildings, Karel Mark Chichon conducts the Latvian National Symphony Orchestra.

"It's not good enough to play so-so concerts", he explains. "We've hired many young players, and they're really involved. Now we're the best orchestra in the Baltics, and we want to become the best in New Europe."

In Riga, symphony concerts are not an elite taste; the National Symphony Orchestra's concerts are regularly sold out. Since tickets for classical music can be had for the same price as movie tickets, young Latvians often opt for the opera or the symphony on a Friday night. You don't have to be an expert to enjoy it. Afterwards, head out for some local Aldaris or Cesu beer.

Trade: Another Roy, another ace for Phils

Oswalt joins Halladay on reigning National League champions

Three-time all-star Roy Oswalt gave his OK to a trade to Philadelphia from Houston Thursday, becoming the latest ace to join the hard-charging Phillies.

The Astros dealt Oswalt and a sizable amount of cash to the two-time NL champions for pitcher J.A. Happ and two speedy prospects, outfielder Anthony Gose and shortstop Jonathan Villar. Houston then traded Gose to Toronto.

Oswalt joins a rotation that includes star Roy Halladay, acquired from the Blue Jays in the off-season, and Cole Hamels, the 2008 World Series MVP. Oswalt is scheduled to make his debut for the Phillies Friday night, starting at Washington.

"We're trying to do what we can to get back to the World Series and win it," Phillies general manager Ruben Amaro Jr. said.

This was the second straight year the Phillies made a major trade for a pitcher in the days leading up to the July 31 deadline. Last season, they got Cliff Lee and he boosted them to another NL pennant — Lee was then sent to Seattle in a separate deal on the same day the Phillies acquired Halladay.

- Oswalt is 143-82 with a 3.24 ERA in 10 seasons with the Astros.
- He is due about $5.33 million US the rest of this season from his $15-million salary and is owed $16 million in 2011.
- Oswalt's contract has a $16-million mutual option for 2012 with a $2-million buyout.

Blue Jays deal Wallace to Astros

The Toronto Blue Jays have tried on multiple occasions to obtain Anthony Gose, so when the opportunity finally arose this week, they didn't have any problems blowing up their succession plans at first base to get the 19-year-old centre-fielder.

General manager Alex Anthopoulos parted with gilt-edged prospect Brett Wallace — the heir apparent to Lyle Overbay acquired as part of the Roy Halladay deal last November — to acquire Gose from Houston mere hours after the Astros picked him up Thursday from the Philadelphia Phillies in the Roy Oswalt deal.

76 A second-round pick in 2008, Gose led all minor-league players with 76 stolen bases in 2009.

That the Blue Jays made a deal some 48 hours before Saturday's non-waiver trade deadline came as little surprise, but that Wallace was the player heading out the door was a shocker. Throughout the season it's been a question of when, not if, Wallace replaces free-agent-to-be Overbay, and now he's gone for a player who is likely at least a couple of years away from reaching the majors.

"This was a trade about Anthony Gose," Anthopoulos said on a conference call.

"We've really liked this player quite a bit for quite some time."

Former NBA player Lorenzen Wright, whose body was found in the woods outside Memphis, was shot to death and the case is being investigated as a homicide, police said Thursday.

Family members said Wednesday that police told them Wright's body had been found near an apartment complex. Police delayed confirmation, awaiting an autopsy that confirmed the identity based on dental records, authorities said in a statement. The Shelby County medical examiner's office reported that Wright died of a gunshot wound, police said.

Wright, a 34-year-old Memphis native, was last seen around midnight July 18. His family filed a missing person report with police July 22, but investigators said as recently as Monday that they didn't suspect foul play.

Police said a 911 call was placed from Wright's cellphone early on July 19. Investigators determined the call came from the area where the body was found and Wednesday searched the woods and found Wright.

The six-foot-11 Wright played 13 years in the NBA for the Los Angeles Clippers, Atlanta Hawks, Memphis Grizzlies, Sacramento Kings and most recently the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Team president promises changes if Esks can't turn it around
Edmonton's worst-ever start: 0-5

VANCOUVER | EDMONTON

▶ Time: 8:30 p.m. ET

Jobs could be on the line Friday night when the winless Edmonton Eskimos take on the B.C. Lions at Commonwealth Stadium.

Off to an 0-4 start after a 47-21 loss to Winnipeg last week, the Eskimos were publicly read the riot act by president Rick LeLacheur, who questioned his team's mental and physical toughness and promised changes from the top down without a reversal of fortune against the 1-3 Lions.

The Eskimos have been called out. It's time for them to play and have their say.

"It was a call-out from a man to another man," linebacker Maurice Lloyd said of LeLacheur's remarks. "Each man has to take it upon himself how they took it. I took it not as an insult, but a call-out. Any man calls me out, I'm going to answer to it."

LeLacheur didn't pull his punches after the Eskimos lost their fourth straight game. A loss to the Lions Friday night will see Richie Hall's team match the worst start in franchise history, an 0-5 skid by the 1965 Eskimos.

"That was such an embarrassment on Saturday," LeLacheur said.

"When we did our review, one of the things I can tell you, I questioned football operations and the coaches if we were mentally or physically tough enough. I don't think we are. That can be changed."

A SOLID FOUNDATION COMES FIRST

Why is the building of a track and field facility for the 2015 Pan American Games in the Golden Horseshoe region of Ontario causing so much consternation?

Why should a professional football team — the Hamilton Tiger Cats — be allowed to determine where and what kind of stadium will be built? This is the age-old debate. What's good for a professional sports franchise doesn't necessarily equate with what's beneficial for a municipality that loves sport.

The Pan American Games are going ahead.

Ontario won the right to host them based on a plan that included a modest stadium for athletics on Hamilton's waterfront.

Organizers should stick to the plan.

This weekend the Canadian Track and Field Championships will be held at the University of Toronto. The best athletes in Canada will run, jump and throw in a smallish stadium that is state-of-the-art for its purpose.

It's not supposed to be the home of the Toronto Argonauts.

Varsity Stadium is attached to an educational institution and is well-used by the community. It's a $16-million track ideally designed for its purpose, much like its $20-million counterpart erected on the grounds of the Université de Moncton that just hosted the IAAF World Junior Track and Field Championships in the visionary province of New Brunswick.

No matter how you want to refer to them, they are centres of excellence where the youth of their respective, surrounding communities can learn the bedrock sport of track and field.

RENE JOHNSTON/TORONTO STAR

▶ Diane Roy races in the 2009 Canadian Track and Field Championships at Varsity Stadium in Toronto.

"Athletics is the foundation," says Lamine Diack, the president of the IAAF. "Young people must first have the opportunity to run and jump and throw, then they can choose to stay with athletics or move to a more specialized sport."

It makes sense. But first communities in this country must show a desire to serve youth and not solely the needs of professional sport.

"Tracks should be maintained," says Diack. "The community should be invited to use them in harmony with other sports that are played in those stadiums."

If Canada wants to be good in track and field at future Olympics and values a healthy population then it requires a commitment to the proper facilities.

The same goes for Pan Am organizers.

In other words, they must build a solid foundation regardless of what professional sports wants.

Canada's Ryder back on the bike this weekend

Less than a week after finishing seventh in the gruelling Tour de France, Canadian Ryder Hesjedal is getting back on his bike for Saturday's one-day San Sebastian Classic.

The 29-year-old from Victoria has packed a lot in since cruising down the Champs-Elysees in the Tour finale last Sunday.

▶ Hesjedal

His Garmin-Transitions team after-party at a Paris club, thrown by sponsor POM, featured a performance by Pharrell Williams and N.E.R.D.

"He's one of the biggest names in music. It was pretty awesome to have him performing, basically, for us — at a party put on for us," said Hesjedal.

Asked if any champagne was sipped, Hesjedal laughed. "There were a few glasses."

The Canadian also caught up with friend and actor Owen Wilson, who was there for the finish of the race.

"A pretty epic day," said Hesjedal.

Then it was off to Biarritz with his fiancée for some time on the beach.

It didn't take long for the lanky Canadian to get noticed. A Biarritz cabbie figured out he was a cyclist, working out who he was pretty quickly.

"I don't see people recognizing and pointing at me but if they realize you're a cyclist, then it doesn't take them much to ask a question," Hesjedal said with a laugh.

One might think that after 3,642 kilometres and more than 92 hours in the saddle — over mountains, cobblestones and flats in the Netherlands, Belgium and France — Hesjedal would want a longer break.

But Hesjedal says he is looking forward to the 234-kilometre Spanish race. One reason might be that he finished fifth there last year.

Strasburg lands on disabled list

Rookie right-hander Stephen Strasburg went on the 15-day disabled list Thursday with inflammation in his throwing shoulder, the latest indication of how careful the Washington Nationals are being with their prized pitcher.

"They're taking every precaution with me, obviously," Strasburg said.

It's the first trip to the DL for Strasburg, who was the No. 1 overall pick in the 2009 amateur draft and signed a record $15.1-million US contract.

"If he's 90 per cent healthy, we shut him down," Washington manager Jim Riggleman said.

"He's got to be 100 per cent."

Riggleman said the Nationals expect Strasburg to pitch again for them this season.

It's possible he could begin his road back by playing catch Saturday.

The move to the DL is retroactive to July 22, a day after Strasburg made his last appearance. He was scratched minutes before he was to make his 10th major league start Tuesday, because his right shoulder felt stiff while he was warming up in the bullpen.

An MRI exam taken Tuesday showed Strasburg's shoulder is "totally clean," general manager Mike Rizzo said.

"It's feeling great already. Keep making big strides. So just going to keep getting better, keep getting stronger, and when the time comes, I'm going to be ready to go," Strasburg said.

He's been shut down since Tuesday, resting his shoulder and getting treatment.

The Nationals have said they would end Strasburg's season when he reaches 160 innings between the majors and minors, even if that cap were to come in late August or early September.

▶ Jays shortstop Yunel Escobar makes a throw while in the air during a team practice earlier this month.

Escobar winning over fans, peers

- Blue Jays shortstop bringing solid defence, potent bat to the lineup
- That wasn't the case for the Cuban just weeks ago while with Braves

Yunel Escobar has quickly found acceptance with his new Toronto Blue Jays teammates, and with one dazzling display earlier this week, he seems to have won over the fans, too.

The shortstop's jaw-dropping scoop of Jake Fox's grounder up the middle and subsequent behind-the-back flip for a forceout at second base earned him a deserved standing ovation from Tuesday's crowd.

Second baseman Aaron Hill gave him a big high-five right after while starter Ricky Romero pointed to him in appreciation as the applause rained down.

Escobar rarely received that type of type of affection or appreciation from fellow players on the Atlanta Braves or the team's fans, and that disconnect led to a messy parting capped by his July 15 trade to the Blue Jays.

"I've got a clear head. One hundred per cent happy. The biggest thing is that everybody is trying to help me and I appreciate that."
YUNEL ESCOBAR

It's a different story in Toronto so far, and he's embracing the love.

"It felt really good," Escobar, speaking through interpreter Nick Leyva, the Blue Jays bench coach, said of the ovation.

"It felt like I'm at home now to get a reaction like that from the crowd."

The 27-year-old Cuban's acquisition by the Blue Jays for fellow shortstop Alex Gonzalez and prospects Tim Collins and Tyler Pastornicky was panned in some circles, as Escobar's focus and commitment were questioned by anonymous Braves players and media experts. But Escobar's raw talent is tantalizing. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Back in the swing

Escobar certainly seems to have regained his past form in Toronto.

- In 11 games since the trade, the shortstop is batting .354 with two homers and seven RBIs, looking nothing like the player who struggled to a .238 average with no homers and 19 RBIs in 75 games with Atlanta.
- Escobar hit .299 with 14 homers, 76 RBIs and 89 runs in a breakout 2009 season.

Opinion

BEN RYCROFT
IT'S CALLED FOOTBALL

GROWTH GOOD, BUT PLAN FIRST

Canada's soccer landscape is going to look drastically different in just a few years time — whether it's a smouldering mess of a crater or a solid foundation for the future will depend on how the changes to come are managed.

Yesterday, Bob Young, owner of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and the Carolina Railhawks of the North American Soccer League, announced he was formally tabling an application to bring an NASL expansion team to Hamilton.

For a present NASL owner and someone with significant sway within the group, the announcement is really nothing more than a formality and I'm told approval should come by the end of the year.

What was of interest, and somewhat of a concern, was Young used the opportunity to pitch the Pan Am games (coming to Ontario in 2015) to make soccer the official sport of its new stadium during the games.

Problem is, there is no new stadium yet and the situation there is far more muddled than it was even six months ago.

With the city and Young at odds over everything from funding to location, the olive branch to Pan Am is, to put it bluntly, putting their cap out.

They need the Pan Am money to make their NASL bid work but with no guarantee on that return, Hamilton could easily find itself with a franchise awarded even before it has its stadium issues sorted.

Similarly, as I reported in March, the NASL is actively seeking expansion into several other Canadian cities, including Ottawa.

The capital city now has two suitors chasing that spot.

The first is John Pugh, the owner of the Ottawa Fury — a local Premier Development League team — whose proposal lists 2013 as its entry date.

The other is Neil Malhotra, a local developer, who is targeting 2012 for an arrival.

Sources tell me NASL is once again looking to pull the trigger quickly and a decision will come in early 2011. Even more than the Hamilton stadium situation, both seem awfully fast.

For those of us who baked on the empty open plain that was Canadian soccer in the 1990s, the thought of expansion is exciting — sexy even.

But a sharp smack upside the head is needed for anyone already dreaming up a six-team battle for the Canadian championship.

Don't put the cart before the horse and all that. Hell, shoot the horse and toss the cart in the ditch if it means proper planning will be done.

In no uncertain terms, the NASL should not push these applications through just because it can — otherwise, without the proper vetting, we're going to end up right back where we were — on that vast, empty plain.

Sports in brief

Rangers add Cantu in deal

BASEBALL. The AL West-leading Texas Rangers added another bat for the stretch, getting third baseman Jorge Cantu from the Florida Marlins Thursday for two minor league pitchers. Cantu hit .262 with 10 home runs and 54 RBIs for Florida.

Steelers sign OT Adams

NFL. The Pittsburgh Steelers have reached terms with five-time Pro Bowl offensive tackle Flozell Adams on a two-year contract. The Steelers have sought offensive line help since tackle Willie Colon was lost for the season.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 19 It's not like you to get emotionally worked up but today something or someone will get you raging. Maybe that's a good thing. Maybe you need to let off some steam.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 21 If something goes wrong today you are advised not to take it seriously. Other people may rant and rave and act as if it's the end of the world but it's not even close.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 By all means have high expectations of yourself but don't try to impose those expectations on other people, not even those you think might benefit from a little more direction in their lives.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Today will test your loyalties, both at home and at work, or maybe between home and work. It won't be possible to make everyone happy, so do what makes you happy. That's always the best policy.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Use your time and energy wisely today, because you don't have as much of either as you would like to believe. Also, when travelling, remember that not everyone thinks or acts as fast as you.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 The urge to spend money may be overwhelming today but you've got to fight it because you are going to need that cash over the next two or three weeks.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Promise yourself that no matter how much certain people may annoy you today you won't overreact. Take your earphones with you and use them to cut yourself off from the world.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Other people won't take kindly to anyone trying to tell them what to do today. Yes, that means you! It may be that you know best but that's not the point — the point is that everyone should be free to make their own mistakes.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You may be tempted to force an issue that up until now you have left alone but it's unlikely to work. If you push too hard others will push right back at you.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You will be the center of attention today, hopefully but not necessarily for the right reasons. It will be difficult for you to deny what you've been up to.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 You will have to tighten your belt today and over the weekend, and you may even have to sell off some of those luxury items you bought when times were good so you can make needs meet now. SALLY BROMPTON
